

BIOGRAPHY OF JIM LUCE

Jim Luce is a former investment banker, as well as philanthropist, and international development specialist.

He founded the United Nations-affiliated Orphans International Worldwide in 1999 and has been active working with orphan care in Asia, Africa, and the Americas. Most recently, he led a team of post-earthquake relief workers to Haiti.

Luce is a freelance writer for the New York Times and writes regularly on Thought Leaders and Global Citizens for the Huffington Post and Daily Kos. He is Editor-in-Chief of the Jim Luce Stewardship Report.

Luce began his career as an Assistant Eurobond Portfolio Manager with Daiwa Bank on Wall Street upon his return from studying at Waseda University in Tokyo.

He also has taken leadership positions with organizations involved with both conflict resolution and global warming. His full bio is available in Wikipedia.