10 of My Life's Greatest Accomplishments

1. The birth of my beautiful children, Amber Nicole Dawkins and Justin Keyth Dawkins. Doctors told me that I would not be able to give birth to children. I had two successful pregnancies as well as two successful deliveries.
2. I take honor in being the first and only African American, male or female to hold the distinguished position of Global Senior Vice President in the history of AB Volvo. I've led an international staff in industrial relations for over 100,000 employees worldwide.
3. I have written and will publish my first non-fiction book, Corporate Coffee: "Success Never Tasted So Good". Corporate Coffee will be released domestically and internationally during the summer of 2010.
4. 2010 Recipient of the US House of Representatives "Congressional Record" for implementing exceptional global business initiatives, community involvement and working closely with influential international women's organizations.
5. Recipient of the North American Leadership Award from the World Igbo Congress of Nigeria, Africa. I received an honorary doctorate for exemplifying outstanding global leadership.

6. Visited several areas in South Africa and worked with some of the most precious school children. I was able to personally mentor and counsel with several of the female students. I supplied them with a variety of resources to hopefully make their lives a bit happier and easier.
7. I am extremely proud to have met with one of my most respected role models. The United States Secretary of State, Hillary Rodham Clinton.
8. Moderated a Global Summit in Amsterdam, Netherlands for the World Health Organization to a group of International Medical Professionals from the some of the world's leading corporations.
9. Developed and implemented "Corporate" Special Olympics Programs which allowed employees to work as volunteers during Company paid time. I was also successful in negotiating with Companies to commit to donating charitable contributions on an annual basis.
10. I have mentored women from various parts of the region within North America and Abroad regarding self-esteem, being self-motivated, choosing the right career choices and making a difference in other people's lives.
