

VICKY TZOLIS

Vicky Tzolis was born in Salonika, Greece, one of six children. She finished the British Institute in Salonika, with a proficiency degree in the English that led her to teach children. After coming to North America and traveling extensively through Canada and the United States, she settled in New York City.

There, she pursued her education in Film Studies at New York University, while working for a film lab and distributor, acting as a liason between the US and Greece. She then received a Certificate in Hotel/Motel Management from New York University, entering into the hotel business and becoming a hotel parner since 1978. She later received her Bachelor degree of science from Adelphi University in Business Administration.

She is a supporter of the MICA program of Long Island, which helps individuals with the dual problem of mental illness and chemical abuse. In addition, she is a member of the AAUW (American Association of University Women), supporting educational funding for underpriveledged women. She is a wife, mother and grandmother.
